Forecast for Thursday 25 Jan 2024

Weather: Mainly dry during the early hours with some clear spells, although clouding over with some rain and summit snow towards dawn. Cloudy with outbreaks of rain through the day, heavy at times over western ranges and preceded by snow over the higher summits. The rain will ease for a time later in the afternoon and during the evening with some clear spells, before a band of heavy rain spreads in from the west towards midnight.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 80% at first, becoming 40% by midday

Low cloud and visibility: Summits largely clear of cloud with good visibilities overnight, then scattered to broken cloud forming in the rain with bases 400-600 metres. Visibilities becoming moderate or poor at times in the rain.
